

University of
Zurich UZH

Center of Dental Medicine

---

University of Zurich's Center for Dental Medicine is one of the four dental university centers of Switzerland. It has approximately 390 employees and comprises six clinics, an institute, and a central administration department.

The Clinic for Masticatory Disorders and Dental Biomaterials has a vacant position for a

Research Fellow

20% (from 1 May 2024)

Responsibilities

- Teaching basic and applied dental materials at undergraduate level
- Contribution to undergraduate and post-graduate curriculum
- Formulate teaching goals
- Formulate exam questions
- Supervise hands-on courses
- Evaluate student assignments

Requirements of the Candidate

- Master or PhD degree in material science
- Good understanding of medical and dental applications
- Experience with teaching medical and dental biomaterials
- Good command of didactic skills
- Interest in biomaterials research
- Highly motivated and responsible, independent and well-organized working style
- Knowledge of German and English at a professional level

Offer

- An interdisciplinary working environment, giving high responsibility and freedom
- Working with young and motivated team

Selection method

An application requires a written solicitation, extended CV, and two references with contact information. The selection will be based on the comparison of the submitted applications, including an interview with the pre-selected candidates.

Applications to be sent to Prof. Dr. Dr. h.c., Mutlu Özcan, PhD before 30 April 2024:
mutlu.ozcan@zsm.uzh.ch

Center for Dental Medicine
Plattenstrasse 11
CH-8032 Zurich